an English Comedian Who Gave Dickens Ideas for the Character. It would appear that the original Sam Weller of Dickens' 'Pickwick pedition against Sitting Bull and the Papers" fame was a certain Sam Vale, an English low comedian, who, in the earlier years of the present century. was very popular in the southern part of England. In the year 1811, and for a few years afterward, he acquired quite a musical reputation in a farce called "The Boarding House," written by Beasley. In this piece he played the part of Simon Spotterdash, person who indulged in odd and whimsical sayings. "Come on, as the man said to the tight boots" "I am down on you, as the extinguisher said to the candle;" "Let every one take care of himself, as the donkey said when dancing among the chickens," are fair illustrations of the wittleisms in the course of that play, the resem blance between them and some of the sayings of Sam Weller being very marked.
